Awards Continue for City of Mandurah

19 April, 2005

The City of Mandurah has received the HIA Landcorp Greensmart Partnership Award in recognition of their joint partnership with Mirvac Fini, Ultimate Homes, Solar Dwellings and Sustainable Consulting formed to design and construct the Sustainable Display Home.

The Greensmart awards recognise excellence in sustainable home construction, design and innovation.

City of Mandurah Chief Executive Mark Newman said Council is pleased to have been recognised at a state level for this particular partnership.

“It has been a pleasure to partner with these companies who are considered leaders in their field in delivering the Sustainable Display Home for the benefit of the community,” Mr Newman said.

The home will showcase environmentally responsible features which are affordable, accessible and achievable to the average home builder.

“Council is committed to sustainability initiatives, and the display home will form an educational tool for the community to learn about the various environmentally friendly alternatives available when building a new home,” Mr Newman said.

The Sustainable Display Home is currently being constructed in Meadow Springs, Stage 12 and will be opened during May this year.
